Course Description

This course will provide opportunities for students to work with a variety of forms that lead to the mastery of effective organization, topic development, and appropriate styles, including the development of processes of thoughtful and analytical reading skills. Written work is required weekly.

Course Objectives

At the end of this course, the student should be able to achieve the following objectives:

1. Write varied and coherent sentences free of major errors,
2. Apply prewriting, writing, and editing skills to the task of composing essays,
3. Write expository essays of several paragraphs,
4. Apply the principles of introduction, body, and conclusion in a composition,
5. Analyze the techniques and judge the effectiveness of various illustrative reading material aimed at a college level reading audience,
6. Demonstrate critical reading skills by progressing from literal understanding to inference and evaluation.

Specific Unit Objectives

At the end of this course, the student should be able to achieve the following objectives:

1. Learn to explore ideas and plan writing assignments through use of such techniques as journal writing, brainstorming, clustering, free writing, and outlining,
2. Learn to compose unified, coherent, logically organized, and fully developed paragraphs and essays,
3. Learn to rethink ideas and revise expression to improve communication,
4. Learn to improve style and correct mistakes in grammar, diction, punctuation, and spelling,
5. Learn to analyze stylistic techniques and evaluate the rhetorical effectiveness of various college level reading selections.

Textbook

Steps to Writing Well with Additional Readings, Eleventh Edition, by Jean Wyrick

Important note: Steps to Writing Well with Additional Readings comes both as an eBook and hardcopy. The eBook version, also referred to as MindTap, of the textbooks for this course can be accessed directly through our Blackboard course site. You can just create an account using your college email address if you do not already have an account and only use the eBook this semester to complete all of the assignments in the course. On the other hand, if you would like a physical textbook, you can also get a hardcopy of Steps to Writing Well using the Cengage dashboard on the upper right-hand side of your screen. You will have to pay an additional $10 for shipping and handling. When the semester ends, you would then ship it back to the publishing company, Cengage. All of the assignments for the semester are listed on the weekly schedule of assignments and syllabus and, once again, can be accessed through the eBook link in Blackboard. If you can find the same information in the hard copy, I also indicate where you can find that assignment in the textbook if you prefer to read it in the physical book. If the assignment only says eBook, it cannot be found in hardcopy of Steps to Writing Well. In sum, in order to complete the assignments and have a chance to pass this course, you must have access to the eBook; however, the textbook Steps to Writing Well is optional.

In order for you to have a successful semester, it is imperative that you have the course material that is required no later than the second week of the semester when you will first receive assignments from the textbook. If you do not, you will fall behind in the assignments, and you will not be given extra time to complete them if you do not have the required textbook by the second week of the semester. Therefore, to avoid this issue, this course is a part of the ACCESS program. It provides students with access to the eBook on the first day of class at a reduced rate, which is automatically charged to the students' account to be paid by financial aid, if the student receives it, or out of pocket. However, students have the option of opting out of the program by September 6, 2025. (You have received an email through your college email account explaining this program in more detail and providing the link to opt out by that time.) The student will then be responsible for purchasing the eBook personally in a timely manner, so he or she will not fall behind. Therefore, I encourage you to take advantage of the ACCESS program, so you can keep up with your assignments and pay the reduced price.

Instructional Strategy

During the course, we will follow this general format. You the student will read each newly assigned essay and/or chapter from Steps to Writing Well or MindTap before the class period indicated on the schedule and be prepared for the lecture and class discussion. (Please note that the tentative schedule will indicate where you can find the reading for each class. Some readings can be found in both Steps to Writing Well and MindTap while others will only be found in MindTap. When both are indicated, you can choose whether you complete the reading in Steps to Writing Well or MindTap). Any questions that you have regarding the readings and/or assignments should be brought up for discussion in class. As indicated on the schedule, we will have a writing workshop for the first essay to give you time during class to work on your writing assignment, and we will review writing skills, grammar and/or punctuation rules. Then, I will have you to apply what we cover during the writing workshop to one of your previous essays, so please either bring a copy of the paper to class or be able to access one on your laptop when we have the writing workshops. (If time permits, we will set aside time for you to work on your other essays during class.) Therefore, it is important that you come to class everyday with paper and a writing utensil.

REQUIRED ASSIGNMENTS

Blackboard

Although this is a face-to-face course, we will be using Blackboard so that I can keep you informed about the course by posting announcements, sending emails, and posting grades that you can access whenever you want. To log in to Blackboard, just go to blackboard.wcccd.edu and enter the same login information that you use for Webgate. Once you log in to Blackboard and click on the assignments button in the course menu on the left, you will see links for your assignments, exams, and essay submissions. You can access Blackboard anywhere that you have Internet access.

MindTap

You will have to register for MindTap, an online program, to be able to complete the chapter readings, check your understanding activities, video tutorials, and writing assignments as well as a pretest and post-test. Therefore, if you fail to have access to the website to complete these requirements, you will fail the course. For example, we will go as a class to the computer lab to register for MindTap and to complete the pretest as indicated on the schedule. In addition to submitting your midterm and final writing assignments through MindTap, you will have to complete reading assignments, check your understanding assignment, and video tutorials within the online program throughout the semester. For the check your understanding assignment, you are allowed up to three attempts for each of the graded assignments to try to get the best grade that you can. If you are not satisfied with your score after completing an attempt, click "Try Another Version." If you happen to score worse on the subsequent attempt(s), you will not be penalized; only your highest score will count. When you are all finished with the graded assignment because you are either satisfied with your score or used all of the attempts possible, make sure you click "I'm Done, Grade Assignment Now," so your score is recorded; otherwise, you will not receive credit for the assignment. For the video tutorials, you will watch a video that is roughly three to five minutes long. Periodically, the video will stop to ask you a question about what you have just learned. The number of questions asked varies from one video to the next. You can get to the MindTap assignments through the links within Blackboard, which can be accessed anywhere that you have Internet service; the cengage.com website, or the MindTap app. Only the reading assignments may be completed through the app; the other assignments must be done on a computer. You will have to complete these activities on your own time. When you are all finished with the video tutorials, make sure you submit the assignment at the end, so your score is recorded; otherwise, you will not receive credit for the assignment.

It is imperative that you check the schedule regularly to find out what we will be doing in class for that day as well as what your next assignment is. On the schedule below, you will be able to see what topics, chapters, and reading selections we will be covering during each class under the Class Activities column. Next, look under the column labelled Assignments & Upcoming Quizzes and Exams to find out what your assignments are at the end of each class meeting and when you will be tested on course materials. Finally, look in the Due Date column to find out when they are due or scheduled to be taken. Make sure you complete the assignments, are prepared for class discussion, and study for your quizzes and exams by the time they are due or scheduled.

Reading Assignments

Every other week, you will have to read one to two articles, answer questions, and be prepared to discuss them during class when scheduled. You will find links to the readings when you click on Assignments in the course menu and then click on the folder for the week that you are scheduled to read and discuss them. You will also find the questions that you are required to address below the link to the reading. Please type your answers in Microsoft Word or Google Docs and upload them through the link within Blackboard. Label your answers, identifying the article title and the number of the question, for clarity. Your answers will be evaluated based upon how well you thoroughly respond to each question, avoiding grammar and punctuation mistakes. When you read the discussion questions, you will see how long your response must be.

Writing Assignments

Writing assignments will be assigned every other week, with the exception of the midterm writing assignment, and will be based upon the class discussions and/or presentations for that day, suggestions from the book, or personal experiences. Some writing assignments may be started in class and finished outside. It is your responsibility to complete all writing assignments. (If you were in one of my or another instructor's English class before, you cannot turn in the same writing assignment again. You must write about a new topic and turn in a new paper.) The writing assignment is due on the assigned due date by the beginning of class through the link within Blackboard; no essays will be accepted through email. If a student does not submit his or her essay through the link within Blackboard, the student will receive a zero for the assignment. You are allowed to submit only one writing assignment late, no matter the reason, during the entire semester. If an assignment is late, it will be noted as late and downgraded unless prior arrangements have been made. I WILL NOT accept the essay more than one (1) week late. In other words, the late essay must be turned in by the next class session. Students should keep in mind that any missing homework will negatively affect their grade. If you include any outside research in any of your writing assignments, you must document it or you will receive a zero for the assignment. For three of your essays (the cause and effect, comparison/contrast, and argumentative essays), you must also submit an outline with them.

Students will have several opportunities to get a good grade on their essay. First, throughout the semester, students are allowed to submit up to six essays through the Ask a Tutor app within MindTap to receive feedback from a writing tutor. Second, students are welcome to meet with me to discuss their writing assignments and any problems they are having with their essays. Finally, if a paper is turned in on or before the due date, with the exception of the final writing assignment, you have the option of rewriting the paper one time for a higher grade. You must turn in the revised essay through the Revised Essays link in Blackboard within a week. I will give you the grade of the rewrite but only if I see significant improvement based upon all of my comments about the original essay. If your paper is late, which means it is not submitted by the beginning of the class through Blackboard on the due date, no rewrite of that assignment is allowed.

Note: The instructor will post a more detailed explanation of the grading rubric for the essays.

The writing assignments will be graded for content, grammar, and format. In terms of content, the essays will be analyzed for unity (you present one topic in a thesis statement and discuss that idea throughout the paper), support (you develop and explain your thesis statement with each sentence and paragraph), and coherence (you organize and tie your ideas together from one sentence to the next and one paragraph to the next). In terms of grammar, your essay will be examined for such mistakes as fragments, run-ons and comma splices, proper verb tense, pronoun and verb agreement, consistent pronouns and verb tense, and misuse or omission of punctuation marks. Finally, in terms of format, your essay must be typed on 8 1/2 x 11" paper. You must use 1" margins on all sides, double-spacing of the entire essay, Times New Roman, and 12 pt. font. The essay should consist of five paragraphs. The first page should have your name, your professor's name, the course name, and the date (day, month, year, for example 22 September 2025) on separate lines in the top left-hand corner. A title should be centered on the first page right above the essay. It should not be underlined, italicized, nor placed in boldface print. Only the first letter of all major words as well as those that begin and end the title should be capitalized. Do not include a title page. The rest of the essay should be left justified. In the top right-hand corner of each page, 1/2 inch from the top of the page, you should have your last name and the page number. The English Department requires English 119 students to write essays that are at least 500 words. (Make sure you save all writing assignments done on a computer on a flashdrive or in a cloud.)

Midterm and Final Writing Assignments

The midterm and final writing assignments will be based upon one of several preselected topics given by the English Department. The midterm will count for one of your essay grades. The final writing assignment will be the second part of a two-part final exam. Although the possible topics will be shared with you during the previous class, you will not know what your actual topic is until the day the midterm and final are officially assigned. We will go to the computer classroom, so you can complete the writing assignments during class time. Therefore, make sure you arrive on time, so you will have the entire hour and thirty minutes to work on your essay. If you arrive late, you will only have the remaining amount of time to complete your midterm and/or final writing assignment.

All essays must be five paragraphs, including the introduction, three body paragraphs, and a conclusion. Also, they must be a certain length, not including the information in the top left- and right-hand corners and the title, as indicated in the chart below.

Essay	Word Length of Each Essay
First Essay—Narrative/Descriptive	500
Second Essay—Development by Example	500-650
Midterm Writing Assignment	500-650
Third Essay—Cause and Effect	650-800
Fourth Essay—Comparison/Contrast	800-1000

Fifth Essay—Argumentative	800-1000
Final Writing Assignment	800-1000

Quizzes and Final Exam

The quizzes that are given will be based on the elements of an essay, the writing process, and the grammar and punctuation rules that are discussed in class. The final exam will consist of two parts. Part 1 will be the final writing assignment as indicated above; part 2 will assess you on the elements of an essay, the writing process, grammar, and punctuation. To be prepared for quizzes and exams, students should take notes during class discussions, study them, and be prepared to take the quizzes and exams even if they have missed the previous class. Quizzes and exams will begin promptly at 12:00 pm the day on which they are scheduled, and students will only have the designated amount of time to complete them. While the quizzes will be administered and must be completed in our regular classroom on campus, the midterm and final writing assignments as well as the post-test (final exam) will be administered and must be completed in a computer classroom on campus for an hour and thirty minutes beginning at the start of class. If a student is late for the quizzes or exams, he or she will only have the remaining amount of time to complete the quizzes or exams. If a student comes to class after the time to complete the quiz or exam has ended, he or she will not be able to complete it and will receive a zero. If a student does not make it to class at all the day of the quizzes, midterm or final writing assignments, or the final exam and does not contact me to get approval to make it up, he or she will receive a zero for it. Please be advised that make-up quizzes and exams are not automated and not encouraged; they will only be allowed due to documented emergencies on official letterhead as explained in the extenuating circumstances section below. Students cannot use their notes nor their textbooks.

Extenuating Circumstances

The MindTap assignments, essays, quizzes, and final exam must be completed and turned in as indicated above, in the directions, and in the schedule below unless a student experiences an extenuating circumstance. An extenuating circumstance includes but is not limited to death in a student's immediate family and hospitalizations. A student must contact me by email before the assignment is due and class starts to inform me of the emergency and request permission for the extension. It is up to my discretion to determine if the situation is truly an emergency. If I decide that it is, the student must provide written documentation on official letterhead that can be verified to the next class session or if the class is over to the instructor's office on the date and at the time designated by the instructor. I will determine how much additional time, which will be twenty-four hours up to a week, the student will have to complete the assignment, quiz, or exam, and the student must submit the work by that date or receive a zero for it. The quizzes and exams must be completed in class, so the student will have to make arrangements with the instructor if he or she is given an extension after presenting the official documentation. Since students will complete and submit all reading, writing, and video tutorial assignments online through Blackboard, can do so even if they are unable to attend class, and will have at least a week to complete them, extensions for these assignments will be given on very rare occasions.

If you are not able to attend class for any length of time, please let me know immediately by emailing me. Do not expect to make up homework and exams after missing class for weeks at a time without contacting me to get permission and to make arrangements.

ACADEMIC HONESTY

The expectations at WCCCD are that principles of truth and honesty will be practiced in all academic matters. Therefore, acts of academic dishonesty, including such activities as plagiarism or cheating, are regarded by the college as very serious offenses. In the event that cheating, plagiarism or other forms of academic dishonesty on the part of students are discovered, each incident will be handled on an individual basis as deemed appropriate by the instructor.

Scholastic Code of Ethics

The purpose of this code is to encourage and promote positive learning and ethical student behavior, as well as, define behavior violating scholastic ethics.

Guidelines for Scholastic Code of Ethics

- Students assume full responsibility for the content and integrity of the course work they submit. The following is a guide to assist students in observing positive behavior in scholastic ethics.
- Students must do their own work and submit only their own work on examinations, reports and projects, unless otherwise permitted by the instructor;
- Students can benefit from working in groups. They may collaborate or cooperate with other students during take-home examinations only if specifically authorized by the instructor in the class syllabus or at the time of the examination;
- Students must follow all written and/or verbal instructions given by the instructor or designated College representative prior to taking an examination, placement assessments, test, quizzes and evaluations;
- Students are responsible for adhering to course requirements as specified by the instructor in the course syllabus.

Scholastic Code of Ethics Violations

Students enrolled in college assume the obligation of conducting themselves in accordance with the highest ethical standards. Actions constituting violations of scholastic ethics include, but are not limited to the following:

Cheating

- Intentional deceit during the pursuit of academic course work, tests, class assignments or activities in any testing area, learning center, clinical setting or tutorial session, or in the gathering of research materials is considered cheating. Cheating includes but is not limited to:
- Copying from another student's test paper or knowingly allowing your test to be copied;
- Using materials during a test that are not clearly authorized by the person giving the test;
- Collaborating with another student during the test without permission; knowingly using, buying, selling, offering, transporting or soliciting any of the contents of a test;
- Taking a test for another person, or permitting another student to take a test for you;
- Bribing or attempting to bribe another person to obtain a passing grade or a better grade on a test or for a course;
- Intentional misconstruing facts or incidents relating to an evaluated exercise or assignment that would change the earned grade;
- Electronic, internet transmissions or wireless transfer of data.

Plagiarism

The representation of the work of others as one's own, including the use of term papers written by others, is plagiarism. The use of another's words, ideas or information without acknowledgement is also plagiarism. The student should seek guidance from the instructor about acceptable methods to be used to acknowledge the work and ideas of others.

Collusion

Obtaining from or giving to another student unauthorized assistance or material in any course work is collusion.

Compromising Instructional and Test Materials

Unauthorized acquisition, tampering with, or alteration of instructional and/or testing materials from desks, cabinets, work rooms, classrooms, laboratories, instructor's offices, tutoring labs, testing areas, assessment areas, secretarial offices, College offices and/or other areas is compromising test materials.

Misrepresentation / Fraud

Unauthorized acquisition, tampering with, or alteration of instructional and/or testing materials from desks, cabinets, work rooms, classrooms, laboratories, instructor's offices, tutoring labs, testing areas, assessment areas, secretarial offices, College offices and/or other areas is compromising test materials.

I take cheating; plagiarism; and the use of AI, including but not limited to ChatGPT, Rytr, Sudowrite, Grammarly, and Wordtune, very seriously. I will not tolerate them. Submitting an entire essay or part of an essay that you did not write; not providing in-text citations and a works cited page when required; copying from another person's paper; using someone else's ideas, words, or AI to complete the final exam; using notes, textbooks, or other materials during a quiz or test when not permitted by the instructor; sharing answers for a quiz or test; or misrepresenting the events, characters, details, or words of a short story or outside source is academic dishonesty and will result in a grade of "0" for that assignment. Furthermore, if I determine that you have plagiarized any assignments, used AI, or misrepresented a story or source, you will not have an opportunity to resubmit the assignment to receive a grade. In addition, you will be referred to student services for discipline based on college policy and reported to the administration.

CLASS POLICIES AND PROCEDURES

Attendance Policy

It is required that attendance is recorded daily since many students are receiving state and federal money that requires positive attendance verification. You will receive a "0" for positive attendance verification if you do not attend one class session prior to the deadline date. You will not be reinstated into the course if you do not attend. Students that do NOT appear on the class roster will NOT be allowed to attend class and will NOT receive a final grade from the course. (Children are not allowed in the classroom. Also, unattended children are not allowed in the LRC, lab, or hallways.)

Students are expected to attend all class sessions, to be on time, and to stay the duration of the class. If a student misses class, is late, or leaves early no matter the reason, the instructor will note it, and his or her attendance grade will be negatively affected.

It is the student's responsibility to contact me and to explain the reason for an absence when absence from class/lab is unavoidable. This should not happen frequently. Arrange your personal schedule around your class/lab time. Also, the student must make arrangements to find out what was discussed, to find out what homework was assigned, and to turn it in within the time frame given by the instructors. I suggest that you meet another student and exchange telephone numbers to assist you. DO NOT interrupt class discussion to tell your instructor you are unable to attend class or lab nor to find out what you have missed because you are late. Either see the instructor before or after class/lab or leave a message in my mailbox.

Note: If I am going to be late to or absent from class, I will contact the administrative office and have the secretary inform you of the situation. I will also ask him or her to give you instructions on whether I expect you to wait for me or not and any homework you are required to turn in before you leave and any to complete for the next class. If I cancel class, make sure you sign-in, so you get credit for your attendance. If time permits, I will try to contact each student by email or phone ahead of time to inform you that I will be absent from class. Therefore, please check your email daily.

Class Participation

Class participation is a part of the learning process and very important for this course. Thus, I encourage and welcome you to voice your opinion throughout the class as long as you are respectful to your instructor and classmates. Also, please do not talk while someone else is speaking. Anyone who disturbs the class will be asked to leave. Participation also includes paying attention during class and following along in the book or on the board. Therefore, during class, students should have their cell phones, iPads, and other similar items put away. Cell phones are not allowed to ring in the classroom. If a student does not participate in class, has his or her head down, socializes with others, or has his or her cell phone out, the student will lose his or her participation point(s) for the day. If students are not prepared or only the same few students participate in the class activities and discussions, students will take pop quizzes or complete related assignments to be submitted by the end of class. The instructor may also choose to call on students to participate in the class activities and discussions rather than wait for volunteers.

GRADES

Evaluation Procedures

Grading:	Scale:
Attendance/Participation	10% A 100-90%
MindTap Assign., Outlines, In-class Assign., and Reading Assign.	10 B 89-80
Quizzes	15 C 79-70
Writing Assignments	30 D 69-60
Final Essay and Exam	35 E below 59
Total	100%

I do not give grades to students; instead, they earn a grade in this course based upon the amount and the quality of work they complete. Therefore, if a student wants to get an A in this course, he or she must submit A quality work. Also, whenever anyone feels he or she is having difficulty with his or her understanding of the material in this class and is not earning the grade he or she wants, make sure to (a) set up an appointment to see me to find out what needs to be done to achieve the desired grade (b) go to the Learning Lab (c) set up an appointment to see the Disability Services program representative or a tutor in the Learning Lab or (d) do all three. DO NOT WAIT UNTIL IT IS TOO LATE. Furthermore, after seeking help and receiving suggestions, the student must make modifications in his or her performance. (I do not offer extra credit in this course.)

Academic Grades

The following is the grading system used at Wayne County Community College District:

Grade	Points	Description/Explanation
A	4.0	Excellent
B	3.0	Above Average
C	2.0	Average
D	1.0	Below Average
E	0.0	Failure to complete course requirements satisfactorily
Academic grades are "A", "B", "C", "D", and "E". Pluses and minuses are not given with the grades.

"W" Grades
W	Withdrawal	Withdrawal by the student during the first half of the semester.
XW	Walk-away	Walk away status. Attended at least one class during the first third of the semester and failed to withdraw during the remaining two-thirds of the semester.
Note: While neither grade, W nor XW, is calculated as part of the official grade point average, they are counted in determining satisfactory academic progress for students receiving financial aid and continuing eligibility.

Incomplete Grade

The awarding of an incomplete grade is at the discretion of the instructor; as long as the student has been attending the class, is passing and has an unforeseen emergency, an incomplete can be awarded. The "I" can only be given after the 12th week of the semester. Emergency circumstances are considered situations beyond the control of the student. The criteria to give an "I" grade are as follows:

1. The student must be passing the course.
2. The student must have to complete a contract which is mutually agreed upon by the student and the instructor.
3. The student must have a true emergency, such as emergency surgery.

Change of Grade Recommendation

A student who believes that a grade has been awarded unfairly or incorrectly should first contact the instructor who awarded the grade to discuss the issue and attempt to resolve the dispute. If the matter is not resolved to the student's satisfaction, the student may appeal the grade to the Chief Academic Officer at the location where the course was offered.

The student will be advised of the appeal process, which includes a written statement from the student and the instructor's written response. A committee will be selected and a grade-appeal hearing will be scheduled. Grade appeals must be filed within 90 days of the conclusion of the semester or session during which the student was enrolled in the course where the challenged practice occurred.

While a student can request that the instructor review with him or her the basis upon which a grade is awarded, the student should be made to understand that performance in meeting course objectives as judged by the faculty is, in the final analysis, the basis upon which the grade is awarded. To the extent that effort, hard work, and improvement contribute to performance of competencies, those attributes are reinforced through grades as well. However, students at times need to be gently reminded that effort, improvement, and working hard does not, in and of itself, merit an "A" grade in a course.

Similarly, the student also needs to understand that the pressure of his/her non-academic commitments (i.e., family, jobs, social, community, etc.) does not constitute a valid reason for the instructor to have lower expectations of some students than of others. At times, students try to do too much and, therefore, cannot devote the time to academics that is required. Those students may benefit from assistance in planning their academic schedules so as to meet educational goals while fulfilling personal commitments.

Dropping a Class

Before you decide to drop this course, I encourage you to discuss with me any problems or difficulties you might be having; my goal is to help every student complete this class. However, if you still decide to drop the course, IT IS THE POLICY OF THE COLLEGE THAT THE RESPONSIBILITY FOR DROPPING A CLASS BELONGS TO THE STUDENT.

STUDENT SUPPORT SERVICES

Learning Center:

The Learning Center, funded by the U.S. Department of Education, assists students with regularly scheduled tutoring appointments. Many other students are assisted on a drop-in basis. The LC gives presentations to classes upon requests and welcomes instructors to accompany their students to the lab to familiarize them with the location and services. Tutoring is offered for all courses subject to the availability of tutors. Learning Resource Center lrchelp@wcccd.edu

Student Support Services - Disability Support Services

Disability Support Services provide resources according to the individual needs of students with disabilities. Wayne County Community College Disability Support Services coordinate assessment and include services such as tutoring, visual aids, sign language interpreters, language interpreters and note takers, as well as special equipment often required to support academic success in college. Instructors and advisors may refer students who need assistance. However, students are welcome to come and discuss individual concerns without referrals. Contact Number: (313) 496-2634.

About This Program

Disability Support Services at Wayne County Community College District (WCCCD) strives to provide students with the necessary tools to help them accomplish their educational and career goals. It is the goal of Disability Support Services to:

1. Provide appropriate and reasonable accommodations and support services,
2. Provide referrals, information, resources to students to improve their academic and employability success,
3. Encourage and assist students with disabilities to become more independent,
4. Increase faculty understanding of the need of students with disabilities and
5. Work as an advocate for students.

In addition to the support services that are available to other students, students in the Disability Support Services Program have the following services available:

- Workshops
- Note takers
- Interpreters
- Adaptive equipment

Program participants are also assisted with referrals to both internal and external support services.

External Referral Services

- Support Groups
- Community Mental Health
- Diagnostic
- Social Services Agencies
- Michigan Rehabilitation Services
- Michigan Commission for the Blind

STUDENT FEEDBACK: SSOI SURVEYS

In efforts to better service our students, The Division of Institutional Effectiveness (IE) provides routine online surveys for our students. Towards the end of the term, your assistance is needed to ensure that all students registered for courses at the NW campus complete the online surveys for each of their NW campus courses. The surveys only take a few minutes to complete and can be administered at the beginning or end of your class session. The data collected from these surveys provide evidence-based feedback to support continued assessment and strategic planning. This enables continuous improvement of the Districts services to students, faculty and staff. We hope that you will welcome this opportunity to assist us in obtaining feedback from our students regarding their needs and expectations. Survey link: www.wcccd.edu/dept/survey.htm
