Campus
English 119 (English 1), Section 316, CRN 58460 (3 Credit Hours), Room TBA
Face-to-Face, Complemented by Blackboard
Summer (1) 2026, Tuesday, 5 p.m. – 8:45 p.m.

Instructor	Steve McHugh
e-mail	smchugh1@wcccd.edu (put "ENG 119- 316 " in subject field) • Use only your WCCCD Outlook email when emailing me. I will not respond to private email originating from services like Hotmail, Gmail, or Yahoo.
Office Hours	By appointment
Course Description	This course will provide opportunities for students to work with a variety of forms that will lead to the mastery of effective organization, topic development, and appropriate styles; students, also, will work to develop thoughtful and analytical reading skills. Written work is required weekly.
Prerequisites	None
Expected Competencies	Upon successful completion of the course, the student will • Write varied and coherent sentences free of major errors • Apply prewriting, writing, and editing skills to the task of composing an essay • Write expository essays of several paragraphs • Apply the principles of introduction, body, and conclusion in a composition • Analyze the techniques and judge the effectiveness of various illustrative reading material aimed at a college level reading audience • Demonstrate critical reading skills by progressing from literal understanding to inference and evaluation
Textbook and MindTap	Wyrick, Jean. Steps to Writing Well with Additional Readings. 11th ed. Cengage Learning, 2022. ISBN: 978-1-337-89979-6. Loose-Leaf edition: 978-1-337-90005-8. Plus MindTap. This course participates in ACCESS, a program that gives students access to digital course materials (MindTap) automatically via a link in Blackboard. The primary goal is to ensure that every student, regardless of their financial situation, has access to course materials from the very first day of class. You must read or view all online instructional material posted to our Blackboard course site, and you must read or view the material in the order it is presented. You must have MindTap. The four major MindTap exercises alone count toward 30% of your overall course grade.
Drop Policy	Same as the college's policy. Last day to withdraw with a "W" grade is 28 July . The responsibility for dropping class is the student's responsibility. (If the student wants to withdraw but fails to do so by the withdrawal deadline, then the student will be assigned the grade earned.)

WCCCD Attendance Policy (Or Positive Attendance) It is required that attendance be recorded daily since many students are receiving state and federal money that requires positive attendance verification. You will receive a “0” for positive attendance verification if you do not attend one class session prior to the deadline date. You will not be reinstated into the course if you do not attend. Students that do NOT appear on the class roster will NOT receive a Final Grade from the course.

Instructional Mode The course is delivered in person or face-to-face at the Downtown campus.

Students will regularly visit our Blackboard course site to access supplemental course materials, assignment instructions, and tests. Blackboard is a digital learning management system available to WCCCD students. To access Blackboard, go to the WCCCD homepage, and click on “Online Courses,” located near the bottom of the page. Your WCCCD ID and password are the same as those that you use to access My Wildcat Portal.

When a MindTap assignment is due, students will access Cengage (the publisher) through a link within our Blackboard course site.

To finish the course successfully, students need reliable hardware (a desktop or laptop computer), up-to-date software (web browser, Microsoft Office, etc.), and robust and dependable internet connections. The computer labs and Learning Resource Centers at WCCCD campuses should provide these resources to students. If you consider yourself computer illiterate or if you foresee having difficulties accessing a computer and the internet, drop the course before the Last Date for 100% refund. With the exception of the four MindTap assignments, almost all assignments must be submitted via Blackboard. You cannot earn credit for assignments if they are not submitted to Blackboard or through MindTap by the deadline. I will not grade any work emailed to me, even if the work is emailed before the deadline. Grable work must be submitted through Blackboard or MindTap. I accept no late work.

Assessment Method Student performance may be assessed by examination, quizzes, case studies, oral conversation, group discussion, oral presentations. The instructor has the option to employ one or more of these assessment methods during the course.

Tentative Schedule The schedule is subject to change at the instructor’s discretion.

Tentative means “subject to change.” This tentative schedule will certainly change. Read this tentative schedule here as a general guide only. Though tentative, keep it handy. As I build the Blackboard modules for weekly instructional material and assessments and due dates, I am using this tentative schedule merely as a guide, and so you should take what is posted in the Blackboard “Week” modules as the “final word” on what is required for that week. If I decide to alter something within the “Week” modules, then I will announce the change in class or within Blackboard “Announcements.” In general, though, you should read the material and complete the assignments listed here in this tentative schedule before attending class, understanding requirements may change. If you miss a class, contact another student or me to keep up with the requirements. I will supplement and sometimes substitute the following work with other material.

In this schedule, the top row explains what each column contains.

The first column, “Due Date,” has the date by which work in the associated row’s coursework needs to be completed. — Noted exception: The first week's Blackboard coursework and the Blackboard coursework of the second week's first day is due by 11:59 p.m. on the first day we meet in the second week (or in the third week if a holiday or other school closing intervenes). — The completion time for each unit of instruction or assignment is 4:30 p.m. (a half hour before class starts) for the associated due date. Of course, MindTap assignments scheduled to be completed during the class period on the associated due date will be completed then and only then because I will not schedule make-up MindTap assignments.

The second column, "Reading/Lecture/Reminders," lists what needs to be read or viewed by 4:30 p.m. of the associated date. Because this column sometimes contains instructions for assignments due the same day, you will normally want to attend to this material well before the deadline. If "(lecture)" appears after an item in this second column, then you do not need to attend to the work because we will cover the material in class on the day it is scheduled.

The third column, "Assessment/Activity," indicates what needs to be completed by 4:30 p.m. of the associated date. Tests or other assignments done in Blackboard must be completed at least a half hour before class starts on any day an assignment is due. I accept no late work. Please don't ask me to reopen an assignment in Blackboard after it has been closed. Expect to do pop quizzes and freewriting exercises in the classroom during almost every face-to-face classroom meeting. Also, at least five other assignments will be completed during the class period: the MindTap pretest, the MindTap posttest, the MindTap midterm essay, the MindTap final essay, and the final exam essay. I will not schedule make-up MindTap assignments, nor will I reschedule the final exam essay.

Student Success

For detailed instructions about what is due and when it is due and for instructions about how to complete what is required, visit our course's Blackboard website, visit its "Week" modules. Within the "Week" modules, be sure to click on the "Date Page"—a level-one heading like "31 January" or "17 June"—because information there lists what needs to be read or viewed before the deadline, because it announces assessments due before the deadline, and because it may also announce reminders and notices. Again, click on Date Pages and read their contents. Finally, forget about relying on Blackboard's calendar to remind you of what coursework you need to submit. While the calendar can be helpful, your relying on it alone will result in your being unprepared to complete assignments satisfactorily because you will have failed to view relevant instructional material found within the "Week" modules.

Again, read and view everything posted to the Blackboard Week modules. Week modules are organized to help you successfully complete assignments. Starting with the "Date Page," read and view all instructional material in the order it appears in the Week modules. If you skip over instructional material posted to Week modules, you set yourself up for finishing the course with an unsatisfactory grade.

In addition, keep a hard copy of this schedule near you. Using a pencil or pen, check off each item that appears in the second column, the "Reading/Lecture/Reminders" column, after you read or view it. Do not go on to the third column, the "Assessment/Activity" column, until you have checked off all the second column's items. On the hard copy of the schedule, check off each assessment or activity after you complete it.

Textbook Page Numbering

While the hard copy of our textbook, Steps to Writing Well with Additional Readings, has page numbers, our digital version of the textbook, the MindTap copy, has only section numbers that do not align always with pages in the hard copy. So below I assign pages numbers first and then in parentheses I give the MindTap or digital version's section numbers roughly corresponding to the page numbers. I also list specific readings (titled essays or stories) or videos, which will be covered in lecture. During any lecture, listen carefully for specific instructions for reading or homework due for the next class meeting. While there are often many exercises (or "activities") included in each chapter of our textbook, you are not expected to do the exercises for credit unless I announce during class such a homework or quiz assignment. Within MindTap chapters, you may find "Practice It" or "Apply It" folders with "Counts Towards Grade" exercises. These exercises do not count towards your final grade. Test yourself, if you like, but don't expect credit for this MindTap work. During any lecture, listen carefully for specific instructions. Take careful notes.

Due Date	Reading/Lecture/Reminders	Assessment/Activity
4 August	• Final Exam Prep • MindTap Posttest • Final Exam	• Test — Grade Book Irregularities • MindTap Posttest • Final Exam Essay

Course Grading English 119 is graded using the college grading system.

90-100%	4.0	A
80-89%	3.0	B
70-79%	2.0	C
60-69%	1.0	D
0-59%	0.0	E

Grade of “W”

Withdrawal. Withdrawal by student by 28 July. (If the student wants to withdraw but fails to do so by the withdrawal deadline, then the student will be assigned the grade earned.)

Grade of “XW”

Walk-away. Attended at least one class during the first third of the semester and failed to withdraw during the remaining two-thirds of the semester.

Grade of “I”

The awarding of an incomplete grade is at the discretion of the instructor; as long as the student has been attending the class, is passing and has an unforeseen emergency, an incomplete can be awarded. The “I” can only be given during the last two weeks of the semester.

Emergency circumstances are considered situations beyond the control of the student. The criteria to give an “I” grade are as follows:

1. The student must be passing the course.
2. The student must have to complete a contract which is mutually agreed upon by the student and the instructor.
3. The student must have a true emergency, such as emergency surgery.

Incomplete. I will issue no grades of I (Incomplete). It is the student’s responsibility to withdraw from the class if he or she chooses to do so.

Change of Grades Policy

A student who believes that a grade has been awarded unfairly or incorrectly should first contact the instructor who awarded the grade to discuss the issue and attempt to resolve the dispute. If the matter is not resolved to the student's satisfaction, the student may appeal the grade to the Campus Academic Officer at the location where the course was offered.

The student will be advised of the appeal process, which includes a written statement from the student and the instructor's written response. A committee will be selected, and a grade-appeal hearing will be scheduled. Grade appeals must be filed within 90 days of the conclusion of the semester or session during which the student was enrolled in the course where the challenged practice occurred.

Course Responsibilities and Grade Distribution

Students are required to purchase the MindTap (or digital) version of the textbook. MindTap access allows students to complete four major assignments that account for 30% of the course grade.

I understand that students will want to know their grades for their assignments. The Blackboard gradebook or MindTap's gradebook uploads grades as assignments are completed or graded. However, students must understand that the "Current Grade" in Blackboard's Gradebook is not necessarily the same as the actual final (or progress report) grade for any given time. The "Current Grade" in either gradebook does not segregate assignment categories, does not consider the grading weights of particular assignments, does not consider outstanding grades (as in the case, for example, with the attendance grade, which is added to my gradebook only at the very end of semester). Again, please understand that the "Current Grade" listed in the Blackboard or MindTap gradebook is at best only a fair approximation of your actual grade at any time.

When submitting any coursework via Blackboard (whether the assignment requires an attachment or not), you must click on "Submit." If you fail to click on "Submit," your assignment will be "In Progress" — it will be an assignment that cannot be graded, in other words. Before the deadline, verify that you submitted the assignment by checking its status in Blackboard's Gradebook. If you fail to submit the assignment, you earn no credit for it. I accept no late work.

- MindTap pretest (worth 3% of the final grade). A multiple-choice test. There will be no make-up tests.

- MindTap posttest (worth 7% of the final grade). A multiple-choice test. There will be no make-up tests.

- Four "big" writing assignments. The weighting of the grades for these four writing assignments can change depending on whether the course shifts from in-person instruction to remote instruction. For now, the in-person instruction mode is in place, so the following weighting applies.

Two MindTap writing assignments: Neither paper will be researched. Each will pass through a plagiarism detection program. Plagiarism results in failure for the assignment and possibly the course. Each paper must follow MLA style guidelines for formatting. For in-person instruction mode, each paper will be typed in a computer lab during a class period.

It will be submitted via MindTap. Students will not be able to make up the writing assignment. No late papers get credit.

- MindTap midterm writing assignment. Worth 10%.
- MindTap final writing assignment. Worth 10%.

Two regular out-of-class papers: The first is worth 15%; the second 20%. Neither paper will be researched. Each will pass through a plagiarism detection program. Plagiarism results in failure for the assignment and possibly the course. Each paper must follow MLA style guidelines for formatting and documentation. The typed regular papers will be submitted via Blackboard. No late papers get credit.

- Tests and homework (20% of the final grade). No credit for late work.

- Attendance (5%). Attendance will be taken during every face-to-face classroom session. If the course shifts to remote learning because of a surge in coronavirus cases, then you will make yourself “present” every “school day”—a specific date on which some activity or assignment is due—by logging into our Blackboard Collaborate classroom session. In any case, you earn the full 5% of this portion of your final grade if you miss no more than two class meetings. With a third missed class, half of this grade is lost, and with a fourth missed meeting, the whole 5% is gone. If a student regularly misses portions of class time—arriving late or leaving early or both—the student’s attendance grade will suffer. Attendance and participation matter.

- Final exam essay (10%). No make-up exam will be given.

Late Work Policy

There is no such thing as “Late Work.” Do not bother me with excuses for late assignments. If the whole of southeast Michigan experiences a power failure, only then might I excuse late work. But only an event as drastic as a power outage across a vast region will sway me to excuse late work. If a snowstorm closes the college, I will excuse late work. Submit work before the deadline. Make sure you have reliable transportation. Make sure you have reliable computer hardware and software, as well as reliable internet connections. Consider submitting Blackboard assignments hours or days before the 4:30 p.m. deadline in case you experience some kind of technical difficulties and need to do any troubleshooting. If you find your Blackboard course site is glitchy or misbehaving, consider refreshing the page, restarting the computer, trying a different browser, or turning off pop-up blockers in the browser. In a pinch, contact WCCCD Distance Learning: (313) 496-2684 or email distancelearning@wcccd.edu. I do not reopen Blackboard assignments after they close.

Understand that some tests have only one question. Some tests have several questions. Before you answer any question, review the whole test. Scroll down to see how many questions the test has before clicking on Submit. If you hit “Submit” before completing all the questions, you will not get credit for the unanswered questions in the test.

As a college student, you will be resourceful and creative. If your Wi-Fi at home goes down, you use your phone as a hotspot or you take your laptop to Starbucks or another site providing free Wi-Fi. If your computer crashes, you use your sister's or your local library's. I don't accept late assignments. Do not ask me to reopen an assignment in Blackboard after it closes. Whether before or after the deadline, do not email me work you failed to submit via Blackboard. Only the work submitted through Blackboard before the deadline can earn credit.

Students Who Register Late for This Class	Students who enroll late for this class and who miss work assigned in the first days of the semester (tests, homework, etc.) will not be able to make up this missed work.
Final Exam Rescheduling	If the college officially closes on the regularly scheduled final exam day (for a snow day, for example), the final exam will not be rescheduled. Rather, the student will earn the average grade earned for all the previous course work. That is, instead of the final grade being determined on the basis of 100 possible points, 90 points will now represent the 100 percent.
Important Dates	• Last day for 100% refund is Wednesday, 27 May 2026 • Last day for 50% refund is Wednesday, 3 June 2026 • Last day to drop with a "W" grade is Tuesday, 28 July 2026
Behavior Expectations	1. Only registered students are allowed to attend classes. 2. Children are not allowed in the classroom. Unattended children are not allowed in the LRC, lab, or hallways. 3. Cell phones and pagers must be turned off and stored away during class. 4. Eating and drinking in classrooms and labs are prohibited.
Guidelines for Scholastic Code of Ethics	Students assume full responsibility for the content and integrity of the course work they submit. The following is a guide to assist students in observing positive behavior in scholastic ethics: • Students must do their own work and submit only their own work on examinations, reports and projects, unless otherwise permitted by the instructor. • Students can benefit from working in groups. They may collaborate or cooperate with other students during take-home examinations only if specifically authorized by the instructor in the class syllabus or at the time of the examination. • Students must follow all written and/or oral instructions given by the instructor or designated college representative prior to taking examinations, placement assessments, tests, quizzes, and evaluations. • Students are responsible for adhering to course requirements as specified by the instructor in the course syllabus.
Scholastic Code of Ethics Violations	Students enrolled in college assume the obligation of conducting themselves in accordance with the highest ethical standards. Actions constituting violations of scholastic ethics include, but are not limited to the following: Cheating Intentional deceit during the pursuit of academic course work, tests, class assignments or activities in any testing area, learning center, clinical setting or tutorial session, or in the gathering of research materials is considered cheating. Cheating includes but is not limited to the following: • Copying from another student's test paper or knowingly allowing your test to be copied • Using materials during a test that are not clearly authorized by the teacher • Collaborating with another student during the test without permission

- Knowingly using, buying, selling, offering, transporting or soliciting any of the contents of a test
- Taking a test for another person, or permitting another student to take a test for you
- Bribing or attempting to bribe another person to obtain a passing grade or a better grade on a test or for a course
- Intentional misconstruing facts or incidents relating to an evaluated exercise or assignment that would change the earned grade
- Electronic, internet transmissions or wireless transfer of data

Plagiarism

The representation of the work of others as one's own, including the use of term papers written by others, is plagiarism. The use of another's words, ideas, or information without acknowledgement is also plagiarism. The student should seek guidance from the instructor about acceptable methods to be used to acknowledge the work and ideas of others.

Collusion

Obtaining from or giving to another student unauthorized assistance or material in any course work is collusion.

Compromising Instructional and Test Materials

Unauthorized acquisition, tampering with, or alteration of instructional and/or testing materials from desks, cabinets, work rooms, classrooms, laboratories, instructor's offices, tutoring labs, testing areas, assessment areas, secretarial offices, College offices and/or other areas is compromising test materials.

Misrepresentation/Fraud

Unauthorized acquisition, tampering with, or alteration of instructional and/or testing materials from desks, cabinets, work rooms, classrooms, laboratories, instructor's offices, tutoring labs, testing areas, assessment areas, secretarial offices, college offices and/or other areas is compromising test materials.

Learning Center	Students are assisted on a drop-in basis. The Learning Center gives presentations to classes upon requests and welcomes instructors to accompany their students to the lab to familiarize them with the location and services. Tutoring is offered for all courses subject to the availability of tutors.
Learning Resource Center, LRC (Library)	There are multiple resources available to students to assist with completing research papers and essay assignments. Students must have an updated WCCCD identification card to check out books. For additional questions, please contact the LRC.
Disability Services	This program provides supportive services to special needs students enrolled in career and technical programs at Wayne County Community College District. Resources are available according to individual needs and coordinators' assessment. For more information, please contact the ACCESS department at 313-496-2962.
Student Feedback: SSOI Surveys	In efforts to better service our students, The Division of Institutional Effectiveness (IE) provides routine online surveys for our students. Towards the end of the term, instructors should ensure that all students registered for courses at the campus complete the online surveys for each of their courses. The surveys only take a few minutes to complete and can be administered at the beginning or end of your class session. The data collected from these surveys provide evidence-based feedback to support continued assessment and strategic planning. This enables continuous improvement of the District's services to students, faculty, and staff. Survey link:

www.wcccd.edu/dept/survey.htm

Electronic Devices Policy

In the face-to-face classroom setting, electronic devices of any kind (including cell phones, Bluetooth earphones, pagers, laptops, cameras, iPods, and cassette recorders) are prohibited except when explicit prior approval is granted by the instructor. Turn off all electronic equipment before class begins and keep it all off for the entire class period or until the instructor says the device can be turned on. If I see or hear a cell phone or other electronic device, I will warn the student that if he or she has a second "electronic devices" infraction sometime during the rest of the semester, a full letter grade will be subtracted from his or her final course grade. (For example, if the student at the end of the semester was going to earn a B for a final grade, now because of this second "electronic devices" infraction, the final grade drops to a C.) A third "electronic devices" infraction will result in the subtraction of a second full letter grade from the student's final grade, and so on until the student fails the course.

Academic Honesty

Plagiarism or using another person's work without acknowledgment will result in failure for the assignment and possibly for the course.

As stated earlier, "Students must do their own work and submit only their own work." If students use a chatbot like ChatGPT — generative artificial intelligence — to produce a work, the work will earn a failing grade. When a paper sounds vague or too bookish (like something lifted from SparkNotes) or phony or suspicious (like something generated by a chatbot and not by an ENG 119 student), the work will earn an unsatisfactory grade. When responding to a story, a critical essay, or other text, you must prove you read it yourself. Your writing needs to sound natural, authentic. If you want to contest your grade for work that I deem vague, too bookish, phony, or suspicious, then I can require you to complete real-time face-to-face oral or written assessments.

Plagiarism is cheating. Plagiarism is using another person's words or ideas without giving the person credit. Plagiarism is not just copying word-for-word. Plagiarism includes copying another's ideas. If you are a cheater, you might get crafty and try to hide your plagiarism by switching up words — mining a thesaurus for synonyms — and rearranging sentence structure and things like that, but you will still be plagiarizing another's ideas. Drop the class before the last day for 100% refund if you like to cheat.

Asking an "intelligent" robot to produce your work is cheating.

Writing about generally known facts is not plagiarizing, by the way. For example, everyone knows what happens when the hare races the tortoise.

When the assignment instructions say to do no research, do no research. Follow instructions.
